TOO LAZY TO WORK.

Impudent Vagrants Ejected From Hospital —Eviction at Vancouver.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 25.—The city hospital has of late been assuming poor house functions. Three men, more lazy than sick, were turned out by the police last night for disobeying regulations and using abusive language toward the nurses. The board of health has not yet purchased bedding and furniture for the new wing, though the building is finished and the bedsteads and mattresses were purchased months ago.

Several logging locomotives will go into the woods next year.

The Coal Hill Mining Co., Kamloops, has struck a four foot seam of coal at 150 feet.

The wooden repairing dock carried away and sunk by the late storm, has been raised.

Eleven hundred acres of reclaimed Pitt Meadows land will be auctioned in forty acre blocks shortly.

McFarland, one of the proprietors of the Alhambra saloon, broke his leg in a friendly wrestle last night.

A weak case of false pretences was made out in police court this morning against W. H. Higgins. The proceedings were then adjourned. Yesterday his family was evicted and his wife, for three years an invalid, was taken to the hospital. He had been logging all summer, with poor results.

The Japanese warship Kongo will give a grand reception on Monday night. The city council will attend in a body.

Feeble and Very Old.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 25.—Rev. J. W. Scott, father-in-law of President Harrison, has been confined to bed since last Monday with fever. He is 74 years old and a fatal termination of the illness is apprehended.

COAL MINES IN FLAMES.

The Atcheson, Topeka and Santa Fe Supply Pits at Blossburg, N.M., on Fire.

English Delegates to the Monetary Conference Opposing the Americans.

The Premier's Resignation--Chapleau to be Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec.

RATON, N.M., Nov. 25.—The Blossbury coal mines are on fire. There are one hundred men in the lower workings and it is thought that some of them will be lost. Three hundred families are affected.

At six o'clock last evening fire broke out in the mule stables in the main entry of the Blossburg coal mines, which are situated four miles south of Raton. It spread with lightning rapidity and soon the entrance to the mine shaft was a mass of flames. Sixteen mules were in the stable when the fire broke out and none were saved. When the fire was discovered it was known that 100 men were at work in the subways in entire ignorance of their great peril, and shut off from escape through an air shaft which was likely at any moment to be cut off by the flames. A messenger was at once dispatched to the mouth of this shaft, a distance of three miles over the mountains to notify the miners of their great danger, and it is thought at this hour all have escaped. The town is wild with excitement. Women and children, whose husbands and fathers are known to be in the mine are panic-stricken, and the greatest consternation prevails The Raton Hose Co. have arrived on the ground, but owing to a limited water supply their efforts to extinguish the flames are of no avail. The Blossburg mines are the largest in the territory and are operated by the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway, employing about 500 men, who take out 50 cars of coal a day. It is thought the mine will be consumed. The origin of the fire is unknown.

The loss to the railway company cannot be estimated as they depend almost wholly on these mines for fuel on the New Mexico division, but it is probable that should these mines be entirely destroyed, the output of the Starkville, Colorado, mines, which are controlled by the same company, will be greatly increased, in which case nearly all the Blossburg miners will find employment. At a late hour last night the fire was still raging fiercely with no prospect of abatement.

Chapleau Gets Quebec.

OTTAWA, Nov. 25.—It is stated that the Hon. J. A. Chapleau will be made Lieut.-Governor of Quebec, the present holder of the position, Lieut.-Governor Angers, succeeding to the folio of Customs. Sir John Thompson, present Minister of Justice, will be appointed Premier, and W. B. Ives, M.P. for Sherbrooke, will be taken into the cabinet as Minister of Agriculture. Other changes will likely be made, but what they will be those that know refuse at present to state. The Hon. J. A. Chapleau, on his appointment, will receive an extended leave of absence and go to France to regain his health. During his absence either Sir A. Coste or Judge Casault will be appointed the administrator of the province.

Stood In With the Chief.

MONTREAL, Nov. 25.—William Ashley, the man who left the Selkirk lunatic asylum and tramped to Montreal, arrived at the central police station this afternoon, after walking over 1000 miles. He at once enquired for the chief, but he was out. He was taken into the detectives' office, where he related the story of his long walk and the many dreams he had at night and of the imaginary attempts made to destroy him. The man will be examined by Dr. Bouchard. Ashley was a month on the road and wrote or telegraphed the chief from nearly every station. He also forwarded his trunk to the chief some days ago.

Unfair Competition.

TORONTO, Nov. 25.—The brickmakers of the city and vicinity are exercised over the action of the Ontario Government in putting Central prison made bricks on the market to compete with honest labor. The present price of brick is $7 delivered. The Central prison brick is sold at $5 in the yard or $6 delivered. The Government has about five millions of brick on hand. Much of the Central prison material was used in the new Parliament buildings. The brickmakers' section of the Builders' Exchange will hold a meeting, when some action will likely be taken.

For the Free List.

OTTAWA, Nov. 25.—Application has been made to the Minister of Customs to have the product known as ramie-fibre, and the thread spun from that material, placed upon the free list. The fibre is extensively used in the manufacture of low grade silk and silk and woollen fabrics. It is imported chiefly from China. The application was considered at yesterday's cabinet meeting and referred to the treasury department.

Jumped Off the Train.

MONTREAL, Nov. 25.—Wm. Poirier, aged 18, of this city, travelling from Collins Bay to see his parents, jumped from the train at St. Henri and fell under the wheels. His arms were broken and his skull fractured. Little hope of his recovery is entertained.

The Monetary Conference.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 25.—At the meeting of the International Monetary Conference to-day Senator Allison and Senator Jones set forth the American proposals and reviewed the monetary situation in the United States. They submitted a general plan of bi-metallism offered by the United States, showing that the re-establishment and maintenance of a fixed parity between gold and silver, and continued use of both as coined money of full debt-paying power, will be productive of important benefit to the world. The American delegates also submitted a resolution declaring that in the opinion of the conference it is desirable that means be found for increasing the use of silver in the currency systems of the nations. A document proposed by the American delegates and presented with the resolution explained that they wished an opportunity to consider their plans. English influence is evidently busy in opposition to American schemes. The English delegates hardly make any concealment of the fact that they mean, if possible, to make the conference abortive.

THOMPSON IS PREMIER.

Sir John Abbott's Resignation Accepted and His Successor Appointed.

Chapleau Goes to Quebec—The Manitoba School Case Adjourned Many Rumors.

OTTAWA, Nov. 25.—Sir John Abbott has resigned and Sir John Thompson is now with his Excellency.

Sir John Thompson has accepted the task of forming a government. The personel of the cabinet will not be known for some days. Chapleau goes to Quebec as Lieutenant-Governor and Girouard will likely take his place.

The committee of the cabinet on the Manitoba school case met this afternoon, but owing to the delay of the Winnipeg train, on which Ewart, counsel for the Manitoba Catholics, was coming, it was adjourned till to-morrow morning. Mr. Ewart arrived this afternoon. He will move to-morrow before the committee that the case be heard before a full meeting of the Cabinet. He will also move that a date be set, and that the Manitoba Government be notified to attend by counsel. He has a copy of all the petitions with him.

There are many political rumors here. Ouimet took Chapleau's place on the Manitoba committee to-day. Daly, one of the committee, is in Winnipeg.

Mr. Abbott's Resignation.

Perished in the Flames.

ST. JOHNS, Mich., Nov. 25.—The house of John Johnson was burned early this morning. Mrs. Johnson and her uncle, Hugh Boyd, perished in the flames.

Grover's Duck Shooting Spoiled.

EXMORE, Va., Nov. 25.—The heavy northwest wind which has prevailed during the past two days continued this morning on Broadwater Island. Arrangements had been made for President-elect Cleveland and party to have their first duck shooting expedition this afternoon, but the heavy tides rendered blind shooting difficult and in a large degree unsuccessful. It is probable that this delay in beginning the actual work of duck shooting will induce Mr. Cleveland to remain at Broadwater Island a day or two longer than he intended. An additional supply of cartridges, shells and other ammunition has been ordered by telegraph.

The Biters Bitten.

GALLIOPOLIS, Ohio, Nov. 25.—Six brothers named Williams, desperate characters, boarded the Ohio River railroad train at Huntington last night. All were drunk and soon precipitated a fight with the conductor and brakemen whom they cut and beat seriously. The train was stopped and the engineer and firemen armed with clubs took a hand in the affray; several passengers also assisted, and after a furious fight the Williams brothers were beaten insensible, dragged from the train and thrown down the embankment. The train then proceeded and it is not known whether any of the desperadoes were fatally hurt or not.

He Found the Leak.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 25.—Nine persons were injured, some probably fatally, at 11 this morning, by an explosion of gas in the rooms of the White Dental Company. The explosion was caused by a plumber with an open lamp hunting for a leak in a gas pipe.

HANDS UP, GENTLEMEN!

Six Masked Robbers Relieve the Passengers of a Northern Pacific Train.

They Get on at Hot Springs, and Do Their Work Quietly, Neatly and Quickly.

A Slocan Mine Owner Who Had Just Made a Sale Was Their Particular Game.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 25.—The overland west bound train on the Northern Pacific railroad was held up last evening near Hot Springs in the Cascade Mountains, about 100 miles from Seattle, by three masked men, who robbed all the male passengers in the Pullman sleeper Wadena. Six robbers in all entered the car at Hot Springs, for the train had not gone more than four or five miles before the men entered the rear part of the car.

The first man they tackled was F. H. Miller, of Portland, who was in a sleeping compartment. He was relieved of $10 and a gold watch, and then told to march in ahead of the robbers, which he did. One of the highwaymen walked to the further end of the car, another stood about the middle, and the third remained at the end they had entered. All were dressed in dark clothes, with overcoats and black slouch hats, and wore handkerchiefs over their faces, with holes cut out for the eyes.

They placed revolvers to the head of each passenger and commanded them to hold up their hands, which they did. The Pullman conductor and porter were also robbed.

As the robbery was going on, S. J Freedman of Portland came in from the next car to the one where the robbery was going on. As he entered, not knowing what was going on, he was commanded to hold up hands, but not complying quickly enough, the nearest robber shot through the side of the car. Then Freedman understood what was wanted.

They did not molest the ladies, of whom there were four with two children, telling them to keep still and no harm would come to them. This they did. After robbing everybody in this car, and without going to any other, they pulled the bell-cord, giving the proper signals, and when the car had stopped, pulled the bell to start again and then jumped off and fled to the woods, firing a parting fusilade as they went.

The total amount of money taken was over $1200, besides six gold watches, jewelry, etc. The men robbed and the amounts taken were as follows:—E. E. Hogg, Portland, $10 and a gold watch worth $200. J. Freedman, Portland, $100 and a watch. S. Ofner, all his money, $105; he threw his watch under the seat and saved it.

H. Guimere lost between $900 and $1000. He had just sold a mining claim in the Slocan district in British Columbia and was going to Seattle. It was likely that this is the man the robbers were "laying for," thinking he had more money than he really possessed.

T. C. Taylor, Pendleton, Or., gold watch, shirt-studs, etc. E. H. Miller, Portland, $10 and jewelry. Pullman conductor G. W. Wiley, St. Paul, $50, part his money and part belonging to the company. They gave him back his papers, tickets, etc. From the fact that the robbers gave perfect signals it is thought that they are railroad men. All had heavy Colt revolvers.

The train arrived here between 2 and 3 this (Friday) morning en route to Portland.

ESCAPED FROM JAIL.

Capture of One of the Convicts at Westminster—Heavy Snow.

NEW WESTMINSTER, Nov. 25.—Gilbert was found behind the asylum this afternoon; Rogers is still missing, though he has been seen.

Snow fell all last night, and is still falling at intervals. The depth in the outskirts of the city is from three to four inches.

The Japanese girls brought over on the Empress of Japan were refused admission to the States yesterday from the Whatcom express, and had to return to Vancouver.

Snow fell here yesterday for half an hour but melted as it touched the ground. At Chilliwack last night six inches fell.

The butchers have reduced the price of meat for cash. They say the credit system nearly ruined them. Hotels must pay weekly and families monthly, or supplies will be shut off. They have formed a combine to carry out this arrangement. Some families in the city have butcher bills against them for $500. It is stated that one reason for the city's backwardness in many respects is the outrageous credit system, which has ruined many tradesmen here.

Shortly before noon yesterday, two convicts who were working in a gang outside the penitentiary managed to elude the guards and escape. One of them is Richard Gilbert, who has served half of his term of three years for larceny. The other is Frank Rogers, alias Malino, who was serving a term of fifteen years for an unnatural offence and had put in a year and a half of his time. The officers are out in all directions looking for the runaways, but their recapture is a matter of great uncertainty. The convicts managed to get away by means of a ladder which they procured from the rear of the warden's house, close to which they were working. None of the guards, it appears, were in the neighborhood at the time, and the men got on the top of the fence unobserved and dropped to the ground on the other side. Then they ran up Glen Creek gully at a rapid pace and found an exit into the bush behind the asylum grounds. The guards were first informed of the escape by a couple of little boys. Rogers is one of the most depraved characters in the country, and his escape excites indignation and serious apprehension.

November, so far, has been the stormiest for years at Port Arthur. It has been a continuation of gales, snowstorms, and, latterly, intense cold; so much so that tugs have had a hard time to keep the Kaministiqua open, and even the inner harbor at Port Arthur is in parts covered with ice thick enough to skate on. With the present weather outlook the boats will cease running in from seven to ten days.

Blaine's Serious Illness.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 25.—Mr. Blaine is much worse to-night. The attending physician has just left his house, and says the condition of his patient is serious. Several times during the day Mr. Blaine has sunk into unconsciousness, a condition from which he had to be roused. At times he was unable to recognize the anxious watchers about his bedside. Mr. Blaine rallied somewhat yesterday, and the family thought with great confidence that he would be able to be out in a few days. Instead of further improvement, however, he was found to be much worse to-day. The attending physicians made three visits at the Blaine mansion to-day. Just what the disease is no one seems to be able to say. Dr. Johnson, the attending physician, will not talk, and the family say that there has been no new developments in the case. The disease has so far progressed as to affect Mr. Blaine's brain, and at times he has been delirious.

There is every desire on the part of the family to keep the facts from the public. That they have been alarmed to-day is certain, and that Mr. Blaine's condition is serious is true, notwithstanding the denial of the family, the refusal of the physician to talk, and the general air of mystery with which the case is surrounded.

Quarreling Churchmen.

NEW YORK, Nov 25.—A question of considerable moment is to come before the congregation of Plymouth church, Brooklyn, at its regular prayer meeting to-night. A collection is to be raised for missionary work abroad, and the question is to be considered whether it will continue to be sent through the American board or other channel. The prospect is that Plymouth church will break away from the board, and Dr. Abbott admits that such a course would be in harmony with his views. The theological views of Dr. Storrs, the president of the board, and of the board itself are not of sufficient liberality to meet the advanced opinions of Dr. Abbott and the majority of the members of his church.

Death of a Brave Boy.

NEWBURG, N.Y., Nov. 25.—A barn owned by John Powell at Kinderhook was destroyed by fire early on Tuesday morning, and Wm. Mason, the 10-year-old nephew of Mrs. Powell, was burned to death. The little boy and his eight-year-old brother Alonzo went to the barn with a lantern. Alonzo says the building was then on fire. William opened the door and went in and tried to save the horses, and that was the last seen of him. When the smoke became thicker Alonzo called to William to come out, but the little fellow was pinned in one of the stalls by a frantic horse and cried out that he could not get away. Alonzo ran for help, but was so frightened that he had wandered a mile when he was finally found.

From the Pen to the Pistol.

MERIDEN, Mass., Nov. 24.—A street encounter occurred this afternoon between C. S. S. Price, business manager of the Meriden News, and Eric Gambrell, editor of the Meriden Tribune. Gambrell editorially criticised in the Tribune the alleged journalistic discourtesy of the News in failing to give its retiring editor, Col. H. S. Alking, a "send-off." The manager, Price, in a card this morning denounced the Tribune editor as an "officious intermeddler." Price and Gambrell met on the street to-day. Price drew a pistol and struck Gambrell on the head, kicking him as he fell and striking him on the head after he was down. Friends then interfered. Gambrell's friends say he was unarmed.

Sunk by Her Own Topmast.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 24.—The loss of the schooner Phœbe J. Woodruff, which foundered off the New Jersey coast recently, was brought about in a curious way. She had weathered a heavy gale, but when it was all over a part of her main rigging parted, carrying down the mizzenmast. The topmast was held to the lower mast by a brace. As the ship rolled in the heavy swells the topmast would be hurled high in the air, and then descend with the force of a catapult, rending the timbers until at last the vessel began to make water fast. So continuous was the threshing of the spar that it was impossible to do anything to free it, and at last, when the schooner Jennie came along, she was hailed, and the Woodruff's crew was taken off.

First of the New Line.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 25.—The American clipper ship Chas. E. Moody, the first of the merchant line lately established by J. G. Grace & Co. between New York and this port, under the patronage of the Traffic Association, arrived last night after a passage of 134 days. The Moody brings a full general cargo of 2800 tons consigned to leading merchants of this city, who have lent their aid to build up a regular line of sailing vessels to bring goods from New York via Cape Horn.

The Better Swimmer Drowned.

BRACEBRIDGE, Nov. 25.—A canoe containing two Indians, Louis Nouze and Frank Menark, belonging to the tribe on Gibson reserve, in Muskoka district, capsized and Nouze was drowned. Frank swam ashore, and some of the Indians express their surprise, as Nouze was a good swimmer.

PATERNALLY TREATED.

The Government's Peculiar Methods of Dealing With the Northwest.

OTTAWA, Nov. 24.—With reference to the dispatch in regard to the Northwest Assembly troubles, it is not quite correct to say that the ordinance constituting the Executive committee has been disallowed, but the Minister of Justice has made a report saying in effect that the ordinance was beyond the powers of the Assembly and contrary to the intention of parliament, which merely contemplated in its legislation a committee of the Assembly, whereas an executive committee was appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor. The ordinance has not been disallowed, but left to the Assembly to amend in the direction indicated by the Minister of Justice. Appropriations not having been made by the Assembly owing to the deadlock, the Territorial account is being expended under the authority of an ordinance of the Assembly itself, which provides for just such an emergency. This is the reason the cheques do not bear the signature of Cayley. The Lieutenant-Governor always signed them conjointly with the Premier and the Governor's secretary. Gordon.

Reclamation of a Spendthrift

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—The World says this morning: Count Berthold Ulrich Baron Wulff von Wulffenstein Vjest, and Miss Louise Snetterlin were married at St. Bartholomew's Church last night. The bride is of German birth, and has lived in New York city for some time with her family. Count von Wulffenstein inherited a fortune equal to $3,000,000; he spent his money freely and when the last cent had departed he strolled by chance into St. Bartholomew's mission one night three years ago. The mission made a man of him. While yet under thirty years he had run the gamut of dissipation. He squandered money at the races and lost it at Monte Carlo. Then he came to America to recoup.

Gauging the Quality of Air.

An instrument has been invented by which the degree of impurity which may exist in the air of any room or place can be determined easily and accurately. This invention involves a modification of Mr. Aitken's invention for counting the dust particles held in suspension in the air, both of them being based on the ascertained fact that a particle of dust at a certain temperature and degree of moisture in the atmosphere becomes a free surface, which attracts the moisture and thus turns into a cloud particle. By passing a jet of steam through a tube containing air impregnated with dust, colors varying from a delicate green to deep blue are developed. Each of these tints indicates the relative degree in which the air is impregnated with dust particles.

Cubb's Cough Cure

ANTISEPTIC.

Do you know what an ANTISEPTIC is? We will tell you. It is a medicine or application which arrests decay or putrefaction and heals. The application of antiseptic preparations has made it possible for surgeons to do what was never dreamed of, because antiseptics stop all formation of corrupt matter. We do the same in our Cough Cure.

A Cough or other Lung Disease speedily causes decay. The best proof of this is the putrid phlegm which you spit up. Cubb's Cough Cure IMMEDIATELY arrests this decay and the cure follows with surprising rapidity. If you have a COUGH, or your child has whooping cough, ONE DOSE, or at most TWO will make you our friend.

AFTER HOURS.

A Well-Known Bar Alleged to Have Infringed the Law.

Redon & Hartnagle, proprietors of the Driard, were charged in the police court this morning with keeping open the bar at the Driard after 11 o'clock on Saturday night. The prosecution called Geo. Slater.

Witness stated that the electric bells were not working. He rang for a cigar. No bellboy came. He went into the bar of the Driard and bought a cigar. Witness refused to say whether he had liquor. The court ordered him to answer. S. Perry Mills, lawyer for Redon & Hartnagle, objected to the witness criminating himself. Magistrate Macrae decided that it would not criminate the witness. Witness then said he had a glass of bottled beer. Two other persons were in the bar. It was between midnight and 1:30 a.m. on Sunday morning.

Cross-examined, witness stated he was a commercial traveller and was making preparations on Sunday to leave for Nanaimo on Monday morning. He was detained. The case was adjourned till Monday morning.

HOUSE CONNECTIONS.

Alderman Hunter's By-law Fully Discussed in Committee

Last evening's session of the city fathers was attended by Mayor Beaven and Aldermen Humber, McKillican, Styles, Baker, Munn, Hall, Lovell and Hunter. The session lasted until 11:30 o'clock, but only a small amount of business was put through. The time was taken up principally in discussing by-laws.

The finance committee presented reports recommending the payment of a number of outstanding accounts. They were adopted.

The by-law for the revision of the voters' list was considered, adopted and finally passed. The by-law amending the local improvement by-law was treated likewise.

Ald. Hunter's by-law for the registration and licensing of plumbers was taken up, read a second time and the council went into committee of the whole to consider it.

There was over an hour's talk on the by-law, a number of objections being made to it. The committee rose, reported progress and asked leave to sit again.

Ald. Hunter's by-law to govern house connections with the sewerage system next came up, and the council went into committee of the whole. There was a long talk on the question of cutting off the roof water from the sewers. Ald. Hunter said it was necessary to do so. Ald. Lovell agreed with him, while Ald. Styles wanted to know what the sewers were for. Ald. McKillican said it was safe enough to have the roof pipes connected with the sewer. He understood from the first expert brought out from New York that the sewers would carry off the roof water, but not the storm water in the streets. Ald. Hunter stated that Engineer Mohun had not included the down pipes, and it was suggested that his opinion be obtained. A motion to include the down pipes was lost. It will be heard from again when Ald Hunter has time to consult with the city engineer.

Several other clauses were passed, and at 11 the committee rose, reported progress, and asked leave to sit again.

Just at adjournment Ald. Styles propounded these questions:—"When will people be able to connect with the sewers?" and "when will the vaccination of visitors to our city cease?"

No one answered the questions.

Work on the Streets.

There are ninety-five laborers, 10 carts and three double teams at work on the streets, placed there by the street committee. Ald. Styles stated last evening that about $300 a day was being spent among the poor and unemployed of the city and that the $25,000 recently voted would soon be spent. "We will," said he, "do as much good with it as possible."

Catarrh in the Head.

"After Dark."

Dion Boucicault's spectacular melodrama "After Dark" will be given at the Victoria theatre on Nov. 30th, by W. A. Brady's company. The stage setting is of the most elaborate description, with all the most recent ideas of realism, and exhibiting a completeness of detail that has rarely been equalled. In the river scene an immense tank of water is used. The underground railway of London is also shown. One of the most entertaining features of the play is the music hall scene, in which various specialties are given. The play may be expected to repeat the success that it has already scored.

PROFESSOR MAX MULLER.

A Brief Sketch of the Greatest Living Expert in Aryan.

[New York Mail and Express.]

The last Aryan conquest of India took place nearly 3000 years after the first of which we have any clear information, and when the British Aryan met his ancient relatives, the Brahminical Aryan, in controversy, it could not but result in a great mental effervescence. There was soon a recasting of the whole body of philology; the absurd notion that Latin was derived from Greek, and Greek in some mysterious way from Hebrew, was laughed out of court, and the scholars soon rearranged the whole scheme of the derivation of tongues.

In this great work two men are preeminent—Sir William Jones and Max Muller. The former died too young—at the age of 47 in Calcutta—but he was a youthful prodigy indeed, and had won a European fame at 30. He died in 1794, and his great successor was born at Dessau, Germany, December 6, 1823. He mastered Sanskrit at Berlin and translated the famous "Rig Veda," the oldest parts of which are now proved to have been written at least 2400 B.C. This led to his taking up a residence at Oxford, and he has been in effect an English citizen ever since.

His works are his history. Since 1844, when he published his translation of the ancient Sanskrit or Aryan fables, his pen has never been idle. His scattered essays have been collected and published with the odd title of "Chips from a German Workshop." The zeal of scholars has aroused the Hindoos, and their scholars have contributed much to our knowledge. Men of both branches of the Aryan race formed the recent oriental congress, and among them Max Muller was the leader.

A Trip to Africa.

Of the Duff Opera Company which appears at the Victoria next Monday and Tuesday evenings, the St. Louis Globe-Democrat speaks as follows: The Duff Opera Company opened its engagement at the Metropolitan last night in "A Trip to Africa." The house was crowded. The opera is rather more difficult than light opera. Miss Helen Bertram is graceful and wonderfully pretty as Titania Fanfani. Her duet with Charles Bassett in the second act was heartily encored. Miss Helen von Doen Hoff as Baccametta made the hit of the piece, supplying with rare humor the comic element the opera lacks. Miss Villa Knox as Lessa was given the hearty reception her pleasing voice and admirable stage presence merited. The Fanfani Pasha of J. H. Ryley is as clever as the construction of the opera will allow. John J. Raffael is pleasing as Miradillo, Charles Bassett, as Antarsid, sings well. The minor parts of the chorus are good. The company is an excellent one, and is capable of really artistic work.

A TERRIBLE DANGER.

Many sensible people express astonishment when told that bronchial consumption is a common disease. They are slow to believe, because ignorant of the existence of this terrible danger. The trouble originates from a cold which settles in the bronchial tubes, causing inflammation. With some the disease makes great headway, and is frequently fatal. Thousands carelessly neglect the little coughs and colds, waiting for time to bring a cure. These small and neglected colds bring on that fatal bronchial consumption. Sensible people make haste to rid themselves of all danger by using Harvard Bronchial Syrup. This grand remedy instantly dissipates every trace of disease that is liable to affect the throat and bronchial tubes. Harvard Bronchial Syrup clears and strengthens the voice and imparts great elasticity to every vocal cord. It is now the family friend in thousands of homes, and has done a most wonderful work in every variety of diseases induced by colds.

DRAINAGE AND PRIVIES.

The owner, lessee, agent, or person having the care of any ground, yard, vacant lot, or other property where stagnant water or other nuisance exists, abutting on any street through which a common sewer shall have been constructed shall cause the same to be effectually drained into such common sewer.

The owner, lessee, agent, or occupier of any building or premises used as a dwelling house, hotel, restaurant, saloon, shop, store, office, factory, wash-house, or otherwise, shall furnish the same with a sufficient drain under ground to carry off all waste or foul water or liquid filth; and no such drain shall empty or discharge into or upon any street, road, or highway, or any open drain thereon, unless in the opinion of the Mayor and Council the same shall not be detrimental to the public health.

All vaults and privies shall be made tight, so that the contents thereof cannot escape therefrom, and as remote from any dwelling, well, or water tank as practicable.

OVERCROWDING.

No person shall let or occupy, or suffer to be occupied, as a dwelling or lodging, any room which—

(a.) Does not contain at all times at least 14 cubic feet of space for each person occupying the same

(b.) Has not a window made to open in a manner approved by the Medical Health Officer or the Sanitary Inspector; or

(c.) Has not appurtenant to it the use of a water-closet, earth closet or privy, constructed in accordance with the by-laws and regulations of the City.

And every room in which a person passes the night, or is found between midnight and five o'clock in the forenoon, shall be deemed to be occupied as a dwelling or lodging within the meaning of this section.

SLAUGHTER-HOUSES.

No person shall erect, open, or use any slaughter-house within the limits of the City of Victoria.

EVENTION OF THE SPREAD OF DISEASE.

Whenever a person suffering from smallpox, cholera, or any other disease of a malignant character dangerous to the public health, is an inmate of any hotel or boarding house, the keeper, or one of the keepers, of such hotel or boarding-house shall immediately give notice thereof to the Medical Health Officer or the Sanitary Inspector, who shall thereupon take such steps as may be deemed necessary to prevent the spread of such disease.

Every medical practitioner attending or visiting any person who is suffering from smallpox, cholera, or any other disease of a malignant character dangerous to the public health, shall immediately give notice thereof to the Medical Health Officer or the Sanitary Inspector, who shall thereupon take such steps as may be deemed necessary to prevent the spread of such disease.

Any officer of the Corporation may seize, and under the direction of the Medical Health Officer, the Mayor or the Sanitary Inspector, destroy any tainted or unwholesome meat, poultry, fish, or other article of food exposed or offered for sale.

PENALTY.

Every person guilty of an infraction of any of the provisions of this by-law shall, upon conviction thereof, in a summary manner, before the Police Magistrate or any two Justices of the Peace having jurisdiction in the City, forfeit and pay a penalty not exceeding fifty dollars, and costs if ordered; and if such penalty, and costs if ordered, be not paid immediately or within such period as such Police Magistrate or Justices may appoint, the same may be levied by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of the offender, or such offender may be imprisoned, with or without hard labor, for any term not exceeding three calendar months, unless such penalty, and costs if ordered, be sooner paid

POLITICAL PROSPECTS.

It is quite evident that Sir John Abbott has given up all idea of retaining the premiership, and if his resignation is not already in the hands of the Governor-General, it may be expected to reach him within a few days. Notwithstanding the contradictory reports that have been floating about, there has been good reason to believe ever since the Premier was seized with illness that he would not resume office. At his age a man does not readily recover from brain trouble. Nor was there any good reason why he should be anxious to remain in harness at great risk of a complete breakdown in health. There is a successor ready in the person of Sir John Thompson, who will be accepted by his party as leader, who has, in fact, been for some time leader in all but name. Possibly a few members of the party will object to him on account of his religion, but so far as yet appears they will be very few in number. It is probable that Sir John Thompson, if he felt himself free to choose, would prefer to become Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. A while ago, when it was rumored that Premier Abbott would be able to remain in office, it was stated by some of his own friends that the Minister of Justice would like to retire from politics and take his seat at the head of the Supreme Court bench. It may be safely assumed, however, that he will not do so now when it is made quite clear that his party is in great need of his services. As the TIMES has more than once remarked the change from Sir John Abbott to Sir John Thompson will make no great difference to the country at large. It does not mean any change in policy or in methods of administration; Sir John Thompson has already made that very plain. Though greatly discredited, the "old policy" must still be the policy of the Government; the manufacturers' ring and the railway ring still rule and the interests of the masses will be ignored. Whether the people will continue to groan under burdens laid on their backs for the benefit of the few is another question. There are not wanting plenty of signs of a coming revolt. It also seems that the revolt is likely to be too extensive to be overcome by the usual combination of Red Parlor and contractors' boodle, C.P.R. influence and the Government's power of stifling public opinion through control of the election machinery.

THIS LOOKS BETTER.

Though much cast down and troubled in mind, only a few days ago, by the vagaries of the Toronto Young Conservatives and their president, we have now been happily reassured and consoled by the utterances of some of our esteemed Conservative contemporaries. Apparently there is ground for hope that Mr. Armstrong and the majority of the association over which he presides are afflicted with only a temporary aberration, and that the ripening influence of years will convert them all into Conservatives of the proper sort. The Colonist, which not long since lectured Mr. Armstrong severely on the sin of being "too fresh," after more mature consideration comes to the conclusion that "A little bumptiousness or conceit or freshness in a lad is not by any means a bad sign. It shows that he has ambition and confidence in himself, and perhaps force of character." This conclusion is very comforting indeed. We are also extremely glad to learn from our neighbor that:—

The men who are patting Mr. Armstrong on the back simply because he is kicking against the restraints of party may find in him one of these days one of the most unbending Conservatives of Toronto, and the greatest stickler for party discipline. The transformation of a young rebel into an old martinet is not by any means infrequent.

It is to be hoped indeed that those wicked people who rejoiced over the little rebellion in Toronto will find themselves discomfitted by the regeneration to be wrought among those young Conservatives by the coming years and by the influence of party discipline. What would a party be—especially the Conservative party—without the proper amount of discipline? But the Colonist's conclusions and predictions are not our only source of comfort, for these are happily supported by this summing up of Mr. Armstrong from our other friend the News-Advertiser:

We have no doubt that if this redoubtable gentleman lives ten or twenty years longer, and continues to take an interest in political affairs, with the result of being concerned in the actual practical working of them, that he will desire to give a very different meaning to the remarks which he made recently than what they seem to imply. He will then realize that not only would it be highly inconvenient, but practically impossible, if any parliamentary work or political progress is to be made, for every member of a party or a legislature to refuse to be bound by party ties or to acknowledge any party fealty.

One could not think of refusing to accept this reassurance coming from so good an authority on party discipline as our Vancouver contemporary. At all events, we are ready to accept its word without question, and to believe that the time will come shortly when Mr. Armstrong will think so much of party fealty as to be thoroughly ashamed of his recent outbreak. We feel sorry for him, nevertheless, because when that day comes he must needs mourn most grievously over such a passage in his inaugural address as the following:—

A hue and cry is raised by revenue patriots at after-dinner speeches and by some soul-bursting political speakers on the stump against annexing our land, but not a word is raised by our politicians or by our patriotic press, or by anyone, to the States annexing the brains and muscle of this country in job lots.

When Mr. Armstrong comes in time to be a good Conservative and is willing to let his party leaders do all his thinking for him, what grief will be his on recalling to mind the fact that he once spoke of other good Conservatives as "revenue patriots" and sneered at the good Conservative journals as the "patriotic press." Still, he has offended, and he must be prepared to suffer the penalty.

But we have still one other source of assurance that the rebellious Toronto Young Conservatives will be brought to see the evil of their ways. It appears that some of the clerks in the Toronto postoffice were active members of the association, and that they actually dared to side with the erring president. But they were quite promptly brought to time with the intimation that they must withdraw from the organization if they did not want to lose their places. That was right. No attache of the department presided over by the immaculate Sir Adolphe Caron could properly be allowed to continue a member of an association where such talk as Mr. Armstrong's is indulged in and even endorsed. This sort of party discipline will soon choke down the weed of independence that threatened to destroy the appearance of the fair Conservative garden. Sir Adolphe may be a "revenue patriot," but he can do good work on occasion.

GOVERMENTAL ENERGY.

The Dominion Government rock drill engaged in wrestling with the small rock in mid-harbor was hard at it to-day. Experts say that if no extraordinary interruptions are thrown in the way, the rock will be out of the harbor by the end of the century. The work has been prosecuted with the characteristic energy of the Dominion Government. It is feared that the eastern provinces may object to the expenditure of such vast sums of money for deepening Victoria harbor, and to the monopolization of the Government's donkey engine solely for this work. There is some talk of building another donkey engine for use in Ontario and Quebec, in case the one now in use in the harbor here breaks down. Money seems to be as little an object with the Dominion Government as time.

The Comox telegraph line is another illustration of the wonderful celerity with which the Dominion Government prosecutes public works in this country. After putting forth much effort to build the line from Nanaimo to Comox the Government has decided to leave it idle for a time, perhaps to test its power of resisting the onslaught of weather, trees, etc. It would never do at any rate for the Government to go ahead too fast with such a work; the people might be alarmed if a telegraph line were to be built and put in operation without one stop for rest. Besides, by the time the Government is ready to put the line in operation it will be badly in need of repairs, and if there is one thing more than another the Government likes it is repairing.

There is not so much occasion for surprise in the treatment of the harbor and the telegraph line works as in the drill hall delay. The two former are works of utility, while the latter is largely ornamental, and the Government is especially eager to forward undertakings of its class. There must be something radically wrong when a pet job of this kind is left on the stocks for want of funds. Col. Prior has good cause to feel hurt over the affair.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Says the Mail:—A low tariff wave seems to have struck the world. In England Lord Salisbury's retaliatory proposals were followed by his defeat. The Republican party in the United States lost the confidence of the people because of its McKinley ideas. A revolt against tariff oppression is taking place in Australia, and another in Denmark. A curious feature of the movement in Denmark is that it is supported by politicians of all parties.

If the recent shower of meteors did nothing else worthy of praise, it has at least given the astronomers a chance of exchanging compliments. Some of them say the meteors came from the tail of the comet now visible in the constellation Andromeda. The others say these men do not know what they are talking about, and that it is extremely absurd to suppose the comet hit the earth with its tail. About the comet itself there is some dispute, certain experts declaring it to be Biela's comet, which visited us in 1872. On November 27th in that year, while the comet was visible, there was a great shower of meteors. This year the shower came five days earlier. However, meteors are always more or less plentiful about this time of the year, even when no comets are floating around.

THERE ARE NINETY AND NINE.

There are ninety and nine that work and die,
In want and hunger and cold,
That one may live in luxury,
And be lapped in the silken fold!
And ninety and nine in their hovels bare,
And one in a palace of riches rare.

From the sweat of their brows the desert blooms,
And the forest before them falls;
Their labor has builded humble homes,
And cities with lofty halls,
And the one owns cities and houses and lands,
And the ninety and nine have empty hands.

But the night so dreary and dark and long,
At last shall the morning bring,
And over the land the victor's song
Of the ninety and nine shall ring.
And echo afar from zone to zone,
Rejoice! for Labor shall have its own!

SEASICKNESS.

What an English Medical Journal Says on an Interesting Topic.

Most of those who have experienced the miseries of seasickness, however they may differ in minor details of statement, would agree in ascribing this most dispiriting malady to one main cause—the motion of the ship—says the Lancet. In so far the whole medical faculty would concur in their decision. This, then, is the central fact which confers upon the disorder its unique position. It is really not a pathological, but a physiological disturbance. It has no natural connection with dyspepsia. The robust and healthy, by a strange contradiction, suffer from it for the time hardly less than the weak and ill. Its variations of intensity are felt to be counterparts of mere bodily oscillation. Some find relief from it in change of posture, others in active occupation, all more or less when their storm-tossed vessel sails under the lee of land. Custom and use commonly secure immunity. These are circumstances which one and all point to mechanical causation as the source of the discomfort. It is the unaccustomed rise and fall, the jerk and relaxation of loosely attached abdominal viscera, mainly, perhaps, but not alone, of the stomach, acting upon the central congestions, which must bear the brunt of accusation. It follows that successful treatment cannot be guaranteed by any one method or panacea. Recumbency, pure deck air, moderately firm bandaging of the body are all useful. Drugs have their place and their partial utility, but, as we have already suggested, there is no remedy equal to a lee shore. Nothing can be much more depressing than seasickness, and for this reason we should strongly advise all weak persons not to encounter, if possible, the risk of its occurrence. It is astonishing how soon and how completely those who are favored with a fair measure of constitutional elasticity recover from its depression. In their case the benefits of a sea trip may thus, with compensations of air, diet and appetite, be even enhanced by a few hours of mechanical nausea. It is, in truth, for such persons only that tours of this kind are advisable.

She Knew Women.

Flossie, who is doing her first year in school, albeit she is a very bright child, came in the other evening and began catechising her mother. "Mamma," she enquired, "is there anybody in history named Timon Tyde?" "I've heard of such a name as Timon," ventured the mother doubtfully. "Was Timon a man or a woman?" "A man, if I remember correctly." "I guess that must be the same one, then." By this time the mother was quite curious. "Why do you think so, when you know so little about it?" she queried. "Well," responded Flossie with confidence, "the teacher said to-day that Timon Tyde waits for no man, and I didn't think it could be a woman."

LEGAL TACTICS "DON'T WORK."

Justice Crease Refuses Bail to Alleged Embezzler Waldeck.

The case of Florian L. Waldeck, alleged embezzler, came up in the Supreme Court again this morning. Lawyer Irving asked for a further adjournment. Replies to telegrams sent to San Francisco on behalf of Waldeck had not been received. He asked that Waldeck be admitted to bail; Lawyer Mills, for the prosecution, he thought would accept. Justice Crease objected. An American fugitive from justice stood on the same footing as a British subject. His rights were not more, and certainly they were not less. Mr. Irving the second time asked for bail. Justice Crease replied that Mr. Irving had not such a high opinion of Waldeck's ingenuity as the court had. Lawyer Irving said that he thought Waldeck had better sense than try to escape, and further said that he mentioned these facts to relieve the bench of a sense of responsibility. The court was willing to bear the responsibility. Mr. Irving stated that Detective Anthony would have charge of Waldeck.

"Where is Mr. Anthony?"

A man with florid complexion, short cropped hair, and broad shoulders, stood up.

"Oh! that's different. I'll entertain the bail request. Mr. Anthony does not look as if he would let any one escape."

Detective Anthony acknowledged the judicial compliment with a bow. Anthony was placed in the box and swore to being a police officer from San Francisco. Justice Crease said if he thought that the idea of bail was to give Waldeck an opportunity to make arrangements with the persons wronged and escape justice, he would refuse bail. Lawyer Irving said the bail was a simple transfer of Waldeck from Chief Sheppard's custody to that of Detective Anthony. The court asked Lawyer Mills to state the amount of bail. Mr. Mills felt a delicacy in doing so. He asked Lawyer Irving to put the matter more plainly. Mr. Irving said the bail would only be nominal. Waldeck would be in the custody of Detective Anthony. The court asked Anthony if he were willing to put up bail for Waldeck. Anthony replied in the negative. The court then refused bail. The case was adjourned till Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, with the understanding that if the necessary instructions from San Francisco arrive before that day, that he could be brought up in the meanwhile. Waldeck was again taken to the city lockup.

The Fall Assizes.

The fall assizes open at the court house in this city at 11 o'clock on Monday morning. Mr. Justice Crease will occupy the bench. The cases to come up are: Regina vs. Tremblay, larceny; Regina vs. Tepoorten, assault; Regina vs. Low Chune, aggravated assault; and Regina vs. McLean, larceny. This is one of the smallest assize calendars ever brought before a British Columbia judge, and very few speedy trials cases have been heard since the last assizes. The summer was a very quiet one in police circles.

They Do Meritorious Work.

The Carra Morris company playing at the Imperial Theatre at popular prices, are creating a very good impression. The company include some really good performers, and "David Garrick," which is being given this week, is very nicely put on. When a theatrical troupe takes a second class house, its members are usually set down as barnstormers, but this company does better than some of the combinations called first class.

The Sealskin Sales.

The sealing men have received cablegrams announcing the result of the November fur sales which are now over. Sealskins were offered by Culverwell, Brooks & Co., and Lampson on Wednesday. The average price was in advance of the October sales, but the skins sold were choice.

Leave of Absence.

Hon. Justice McCreight has been granted six months' leave of absence, and will take a trip south as soon as he disposes of the cases which have been brought before him of late. The Columbian says Hon. Justice Walkem will be the resident Supreme Court judge during Mr. McCreight's absence.

To Erect a Building.

The Victoria lodges of the Ancient Order of United Workmen are considering the advisability of erecting a building. It is proposed to form a joint stock company, the stock to be held by members of the order. It is not known yet what size or where the building will be erected, but it will be modern and commodious. The chief object is to obtain a large meeting hall.

They Will Have Their Reward.

The work of removing the remains of the cave-in at the Davie building is accompanied with no little discomfort to the passers-by. The temporary sidewalk on Government street is rendered almost impassable by the bulging of the fence, which threatens to collapse under the weight of earth behind. The streets in the immediate neighborhood are in a shocking state of filth with mud, lime, sand, mortar, cement, barrel hoops, fragments of stone, brick and wood, and those who pass that way are as the people that walk in darkness, and their last condition is worse than their first; but those who are responsible for this disgraceful mess, they will have their reward, even unto the uttermost.

Down From the Mines.

James F. Wardner, the irrepressible mining speculator of Fairhaven, is in the city on his way home to spend Thanksgiving with his family, says yesterday's Seattle Post-Intelligencer. He came out from the Slocan country by way of Bonner's Ferry, and will return in a few days by way of Revelstoke. "I have just let a contract to deliver 1500 tons of ore from my mine to the boats on Kootenay Lake at Kaslo, between December and April. George W. Hughes, of Spokane, has the contract, and it will take considerable nerve to carry it out. He will have to haul in to Kaslo over 700 tons of forage and miscellaneous stuff for teams, and he will have to construct barns and sheds at considerable expense. The distance from Cody Creek, where the mines are, to Kaslo is 33 miles, and the ore will be hauled out on sleds. In the spring a railroad will be built by a Victoria company, which has obtained a subsidy from the British Columbia Government of 10,500 acres per mile. Their franchise requires them to start in the spring and build half the road during the year. From Kaslo there is a daily steamer to Bonner's Ferry, where the Great Northern crosses. Kaslo is having quite a boom at the present time. A sampling works will soon be built there for the benefit of the Slocan mine owners, so they can sell their ores without leaving the country to do so. Whiskey and lumber are the commodities most in demand at the present time, and a great many people are flocking into the town. As for politics, if the Democrats will knock the duty off lead ores there are mighty few of us miners up there who will be sorry about the result of the election."

Jewellery, clocks and silverware are being offered for sale at a big discount by Kingham & Minor of 49 Government street.

Mud Bay Canal.

The committee has been appointed by the Westminster Board of Trade to report on the proposed Mud Bay canal. The idea is to bring before the Dominion Government the vast benefit that a short canal from the Fraser River to Mud Bay would be to the district as compared with the present long roundabout water way by Point Roberts and the mouth of the river. The distance by the canal, from the nearest point on Mud Bay to a point on the Fraser River a mile and a half below the B. C. Cannery, would only be about five miles.

Shut Up In a Bank Vault.

W. S. French says: "I noticed a news item in the papers the other day giving the experience of a bank cashier who had been accidentally locked up in his own vault, and being heard by the janitor was released after a few hours of torture. It made me shudder when I read it, for it recalled an incident in my own life. I was a clerk in the First National Bank of Louisville, Ky., at the time, and one evening, just at closing time, I took my hat to leave the office, and seeing a paper flutter on the edge of a shelf in the vault, and thinking it a deed we had been looking for, I stepped in to secure it. At the same instant the cashier, whose back had been to me, turned and closed the heavy door without even glancing in, as he supposed I had gone. I screamed, yelled and kicked, but the noise of closing and locking the safe completely drowned my voice, and the fact flashed across my mind that I was buried alive, for I knew the cashier would not be back till morning. I beat the door and screamed until I lost consciousness. When I came to, I found myself lying on the floor of the bank, while the cashier was dashing cold water into my face. The time was about 9 o'clock at night. I learned that the cashier, when getting ready to retire, became impressed with the idea that he had failed to lock the vault properly, and it worried him so that he could not resist coming down to see. After getting there, he opened the vault and I was saved. My experience is all I want in that line. It has taught me what it is to be buried alive."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Orthodox Mince Pie.

The consumption of currants for pastry making purposes in the United States is very large, and the fondness for pies and puddings, into the composition of which raisins and currants largely enter, is unquestionably derived from the mother country. Our American kinsmen's mode of making mince pies differs, however, considerably from our own. From one kind of mince pie they use as a basis a fresh ox tongue, which for two days is kept covered in equal quantities of salt, brown sugar and powdered cloves; then it is boiled and minced very fine; three pounds of currants, picked, washed and dried, go to the entire tongue, with the grated rind of five lemons, and an ounce of bitter almonds and a pound of sweet almonds pounded, four nutmegs, cloves and mace. To this are added three pounds of beef suet, chopped, six pounds of Sultana raisins and six apples that have been pared and cored. Nonabstainers add a quart of Madeira and a pint of brandy to the mixture.

Miss Jane Strickland has another way for making mince meat. She begins with finely shred and chopped beef suet, an equal quantity of cold roast beef; then her currants and her raisins and apples come in, and the whole is sweetened with moist Jamaica sugar, flavored with the peels of two lemons and the usual spices. This minced beef, when complete, Miss Strickland places in a tin dish lined with puff or family paste—whatever kind of paste that may be; cut slices of candied orange and citron peel are placed on the meat, which is covered in with paste and baked in a quick oven.—London Telegraph.

Natural Saloons.

The authorities of the National Botanical gardens at Washington, as well as those at Kew gardens, London, are at the present time experimenting with both the "vegetable beer saloon" and what some one has been pleased to call "nature's own whisky shop." The main point of difference between these two antiprohibition plants seem to lie in the strength of the intoxicants which they distill, that caught in the liquor receptacle of the latter being much the stronger. Each leaf of the "whisky shop" plant is provided with a pitcher shaped vessel which terminates the end of the leaf itself, and each pitcher is provided with a lid which shuts down at nights and during bad weather, keeping the dews and rains from mixing with the beverage distilled therein.

This liquor, which is now under microscopical and chemical analysis, is known to be nature's provision for attracting insects, which the plant, after a true "spider and fly" fashion, entraps and devours. The receptacles of the "vegetable beer saloon" are larger than those on the plant just mentioned, and are without lids. The inside of the liquor cup is filled with hair-like spikes, all pointing downward. The unwary insect walks down to get his "dram," but the spikes prevent his egress, and he never returns alive.—St. Louis Republic.

A Florida Girl on a Visit.

This morning a white girl, about twelve years of age, suddenly made her appearance in the yard of the Florida Central and Peninsular railroad, and from her looks she had evidently come to Jacksonville as a passenger on the trucks of the morning train, as her clothing was covered with dust and grease. She would not give any satisfactory account of herself, and in a very pert manner answered questions. She said she came from nowhere and had no parents, and was going to see Lucy Williams at Fernandina. When closely questioned about herself she began to cry, and walked off to Bay street as independently as if she were Queen Victoria.—Jacksonville Metropolis.

Advising Prudence.

"My young friend," said the kind old man with the tracts, "will you oblige me by reading this some day when you have the leisure?" The young man looked at he little pamphlet. It was entitled "Shun the Place of Everlasting Burning!" "Why, uncle," he said, "I should think that would be a healthy place. They boil the water, don't they?" "Yes, my dear young friend," rejoined the kind old man, "and they also burn the garbage. You'd better keep away!"—Chicago Tribune.

A Dream Fulfilled.

There have been few physical experiences of more interest and possible value to research than these connected with the sickness and death of the late John C. Bundy, editor of The Religio-philosophical Journal. A very striking one is given in the memorial number of the journal which he has been connected with for many years.

At the time of Mr. Bundy's approach to the other side of life's veil his eldest sister, Mrs. Frances Bundy Phillips, was in Colorado, whither she had gone seeking health and strength. Though aware of her brother's protracted illness, she did not know how very serious that illness was, but on the night he passed away she had two singular physical experiences. All the evening she felt a remarkable sadness and depression of spirits, so much so that because of it she refused to join a party of her friends at the hotel, who asked her to share in some social pastime going on among them. She went to bed at the usual hour, and dreamed that Mr. Bundy had passed away and that she was present at his funeral, many of the particulars of which her dream foretold correctly—for instance, in her dream she heard sung distinctly one of the musical selections rendered by Miss McDonald at the services at St. Charles'—viz., "Lead, Kindly Light."

When she rose next morning she glanced at the clock in her room for the time and discovered that it had stopped. She examined it to discover the reason for its stopping, but could find none. This fact and her dream so worried her that, though she had promised and intended to accompany a party into the mountains for a pleasure trip in the morning, she felt so sure that a telegram with bad news was coming for her that she declined going, and remained at the hotel waiting the news, which came before noon. The telegram gave the hour when her brother departed, and the time at which the clock stopped was the same hour, allowing for the difference between Colorado and Chicago time.—Boston Transcript.

Harriet, the Modern Moses.

Just outside the limits of the city of Auburn, N. Y., stands an unpretentious little house, surrounded by a motley yet picturesque collection of tiny cabins, sheds, pens and kennels.

This modest home shelters a varying crowd of lame and halt and blind, widows, orphans and wayfarers, all dependent for care and support upon an old black woman, whose heroic deeds in plague stricken camps and on bloody battlefields as scout and spy, as deliverer of her people and defender of the oppressed, have made for her a name as worthy of being handed down to posterity as Grace Darling's, Florence Nightingale's or Joan d'Arc's.

This woman, a full blooded African, thick lipped and heavy eyed, with the signs of her seventy years set fast in deep wrinkles and stooping shoulders, has perhaps done more than any single individual to free her nation and hasten the "crash of slavery's broken locks."

After making her own escape, by almost superhuman efforts, from slavery, taking her life in her hands, she returned to the south nineteen times, bringing back with her nearly 400 slaves to the land of liberty.

At the beginning of the war she was sent to the south by Governor Andrews, of Massachusetts, to act as scout and spy for our own armies. She was a trusted friend and confidante of John Brown, who drew up his constitution at her house, and who used to refer to her as "General Tubman."

This woman was a personal friend of Thomas Garrett, Gerrett Smith, Wendell Phillips, Fred Douglass and William Lloyd Garrison, who delighted to introduce her to a cultivated Boston audience as his "foster sister, Moses."

When in Concord she resided with the Emersons, Alcotts, Whitneys, Manns and other well known families, who respected and admired her as one of the most extraordinary persons of her race.—Household.

Iron Casks.

According to experiments which have been conducted by Herr Arthur Holle, of Munich, with a view to manufacturing iron casks suitable for transport purposes, it is demonstrated that simple coating of the interior of the barrel with various kinds of lacquer, enameling, and also tinning, zincking, nickeling and coppering are unsuitable. In the end the German technologist found that the lacquered sheet-iron was best adapted to the object in view, but he endeavored, at the same time, to secure a fitting insulating coating by means of an intermediate layer. Strong paper, it was shown, became decomposed; the use of thin gauze material was also pronounced to be impracticable. The best intervening agent proved to be silk paper.

The operation of applying the coating was as follows: The interior of the barrel was first lacquered; the tissue paper was then evenly put in position with the aid of some varnish, and finally it was furnished with a finishing coat of lacquer. The covering thus obtained resisted the influence of heat, moisture, and of acids which were much stronger than those contained and developed in beer. It is to be noted that a special kind of lacquer is used, so that the fluid may not savor of the varnish.—London Iron.

A Thoughtful Chipmunk.

I was visiting a farmer, and had gone with him to the middle of a field where he was planting corn. A mischievous horse in the adjoining pasture attempted to get some of the seed corn, and in reaching over the fence for that purpose overturned a bag of seed.

We hurried to the spot and found that a chipmunk had already begun to gather the scattered grains. He was very busy, and his conduct showed that he understood the situation thoroughly. The treasure would be within his reach for a very short time, so instead of filling his pouches and hurrying to his burrow he set about hiding as much as possible of the corn within a few yards of where it had been spilled.

A piece of bark, a chip or a sod served as a temporary hiding place, and in a short time he had gathered all the grain that the farmer could not conveniently collect, and began to transport it to his permanent granary. I noticed several places where he had put a mouthful, and found afterward that he did not overlook any of them when removing the spoil to his storehouse.—Cor. Youth's Companion.

The King and the Queen of Song.

Patti has been writing her memoirs and reminiscences with great frankness. On one occasion, she says, she was actually embarrassed by the late king of Spain. He was conducting her over the palace in company with the present queen. Every four or five seconds his majesty called the singer's attention to some picture or trinket and exclaimed mournfully, "That belonged to my dear Mercedes" (his first wife). The queen and the artist tried to change the subject, but Alfonso XII was full of loving reminiscences, and he led the conversation.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

BRITAIN AND HER COLONIES.

How the Colonial Secretaries Neglect Business.

A clergyman in Somersetshire, Rev. William Greswell, suggests that in public toast lists the Colonies should be a standing toast, and asks why the Imperial offspring of the Empire should not be associated with the Mother Country on all festive occasions. The London Telegraph refers to the proposition, and remarks:

"We would advocate the novelty, for our own part, without hesitation, if we thought it likely to conduce to a better general appreciation of what 'the colonies' are, and what they may become for the prosperity and development of the race. It is not too much to say that we never yet have had a colonial minister of state who rose to anything like an adequate perception of the dignities, duties, and possibilities of his office. None of them—not the very best and most active—has ever yet shown himself aware of the full extent of the capacities latent in the colonial portion of the Empire to settle our labor and wage problem, and to advance, beyond even anything that the United States can hope for, the spread of the Anglo-Saxon race. They do their duty in an established official way, these vice-emperors of 40 nascent empires; they wind and unwind the red tape of their dispatches, and duly correspond with their governors and administrators.

"When, however, does a single one among them busy himself to see that good text-books about the colonies, such as those which are now, we believe, being issued by the Clarendon press, Oxford, are dispersed through all our public and private schools, that the children of the industrial classes are made properly aware from infancy upward of these great estates which belong to them, and which are the legacy of their forefathers? There are, it is true, a certain number of scraggy, skimpy manuals, a certain number of inaccessible blue books and reports, the railway and steamship companies, too—because they profit by emigration—issue handbooks and illustrated guides, which, although sketchy and always to be trusted, do more good than most colonial secretaries, and are superior to most things that emanate from the department. An ideal minister for the colonies, however, would have good and true accounts of these vast popular estates beyond the seas everywhere disseminated. He would have good, clear, informing maps, showing everything about climate, soil, population, prices and products, hanging up in every school, railway station and public building. He would take in hand the emigration rules and make them better and wiser than they are; he would look sharp after the emigration ships and emigrant agents; and work hard at both ends of the system to see that such absurdities did not long exist as empty British lands in one place, and empty British stomachs in another. He would be penetrated with the splendor and variety of the possessions which he controlled, and by a hundred new methods would gradually cause the people at large to comprehend what supreme advantages they enjoy in having almost all the world to pick and choose from when they are crowded out at home and want to find a new one, where they can have good land for nothing, and where their strength, their industry, and their little children are all so much solid and swiftly realizing capital.

"At present what is being effected is mainly hap-hazard and chance medley, in place of the well-considered and well-supported schemes by which the mother country and the colonies, acting in concert, should be filling up the blank spaces in the empire. By letters from friends and other casual sources, more than by any sure and methodical instruction, the people at large learn of the magnificent over-sea estates of which they are practically the owners. What is a school boy really taught about the grand chances opened for him in New Zealand, Tasmania, Australia, in Canada, British Columbia, or the sub-tropical dependencies? He reads a stupid geography book, which tells him foolish figures about some rivers, mountains, and the "square miles," round about them, but nothing to fire his imagination, arouse his ambition, quicken him with a sense that a fifth of the globe is at his feet, to choose a home and fortune in. We are speaking, of course, about the classes which feel the pinch of excessive population, and are of the right stuff to fill up the new lands spreading forth for them in such picturesque and healthy abundance. We should court-martial the naval captain who neglected to have a leak stopped in the vessel under his command; but our colonial secretaries of state see, without emotion and without penalty, English emigrants leaking into the United States out of Canada, all for the want of sensible inducements to keep them under the flag. Take British Columbia alone. There is a vast and lovely and fertile land, with a nearly perfect climate, splendid wheat soils, pastures, forests and minerals, lying at the end of an imperial highway, and upon an ocean which must some day teem with commerce; and what are English people told about it by any official help? Between Winnipeg and Vancouver there is room for fifteen million of settlers, especially beyond the Rockies, and rich land to be had for the asking. There, in those fair and free regions, which even the well-informed traveller passes through with a surprised admiration, is the true and natural cure of low wages and over-crowded slums, and administrators of genius would know how to build up the empire at its extremities, while they relieved it at its centre by an entirely new, large and generous scheme of widespread colonization. If pledging the health and prosperity of our colonies at our public banquets would in any degree help to stimulate those who govern 'Great Britain,' if the new toast would in any way turn the thoughts of Englishmen to the superb chances opened to them and make them realize the importance of peopling and developing these great estates of our race, then by all means let the Rev. William Greswell have his wish, and let us all for the future add 'The Colonies' to our public toast list."

BOSTON. MONTREAL. CHICAGO.

A CITY WITHOUT HORSES.

Sir Edwin Arnold on the Sights of the Great Japanese City.

November Cosmopolitan.]

Nature has done much for Tokio. She has given her not merely seven hills as to ancient Rome, but seventy which rose all round about the great sea marsh on which the city is principally built, redeeming its appearance with a handsome rolling border of rich foliage and lofty banks of residences, besides bestowing the two intraurban parks of Ueno and Shiba, which are full of noble forest timber, cryptomeria, oak, bamboo, camphor and elm. It is, however, when you begin to traverse Tokio from end to end, on various errands of pleasure or business, in different directions, that you learn what a huge and busy world of life and industry it is. There are over 3300 temples and shrines in the streets and lanes, of which ten out of eleven are Buddhist. There are thousands of bridges, large and small, for Tokio is as full of rivers and canals as Bangkok or Venice. Tens of thousands of quaint, high-prowed boats and barges go up and down these networks of water. On their banks and in the open spaces are to be seen thronged and busy markets.

Every street and lane is lined with shops, large and small, wherein all sorts of trades and small manufactures are pursued. An endless stream of citizens, male and female, young and old, loitering for pleasure or hastening upon business, fills the causeways, which have no sidewalks, and, therefore, seem to run like living rivers bank high. All the children of each neighborhood, moreover, make the adjacent street their playground. They fly their kites there, there they beat to and fro their shuttlecocks; they play there in merry little demure groups, at ken, the Japanese "Buck! buck! how many fingers do I hold up?" or at the fox game, or at the "blind devil;" or they gather round the Ameya, to see him blow sweetmeats of grotesque shape out of bean-paste; while the vendor of fish shuffles along with his tube; the newspaper man rings his bell; the babies "wobble" on the backs of their mothers, sisters and aunts; and the neatly decked geishas, with sober haori covering their finery, and black tresses coiffeed until not a single hair is astray, trot on clattering geta to the dinner-party where they are engaged to dance and sing.

Why is it, you ask yourself, that in this vast capital there prevails such peace and calm? Freight from New York, from Chicago, from San Francisco, the immense solitudes of the Pacific have scarcely succeeded in effacing from your tingling nerves and throbbing ears the rattle and hurry and clamer of modern American existence in the great centers of Republican civilization. What makes Tokio so different? Where can you stroll along its endless streets, absorbed in fancies or memories, without being recalled to vigilance by deafening uproar or by actual danger to life or limb. The answer lies in the absence of horse traffic. It is that and the happy lack of tramcars, electric cars, omnibuses and all the other vehicles of daily use in America, which gives to these Asiatic highways their tranquility and safety. Except in the Ginza and Nihombashi, with one or two other main thoroughfares, those noisy necessities of locomotion will not be seen. The little two-wheeled "ricksha," gliding everywhere innocently and noiselessly, transacts almost all the "movement" of the great capital, so that the streets are as safe for children and infirm people as they are quiet for everybody. There must be more than 100,000 jinrikishas in Tokio, for all the world rides in these cheap, commodious and rapid, if ridiculous, conveyances, of which the two-legged steeds never shy nor jib nor bolt, and very seldom stumble or fall. Not the least marvelous or admirable thing about modern Japan is the manner in which she has invented, and universally adopted a mode of locomotion that so exactly suits her people, her towns and cities and her narrow roads. The happy consequence is that all her days are peaceful and that at night her citizens sleep the "sleep of the just," undisturbed by any noise except that of the ubiquitous nezumi, the Tokio rat and the occasional ominous sound of the hansho—the dreaded fire bell.

Where "Canning" Came From.

We are indebted to the people of old Pompeii, who were all smothered in the first century of the Christian era, for one of the most important industries of our time—the canning business. Years ago, when the first excavations were made in that buried city, an American came upon several jars of figs. When they were opened the contents were found to be as fresh and palatable as when they were put up eighteen centuries before. Investigation instituted upon the spot proved that the fruit had been put into the jars in a highly heated state, and that an aperture for the escape of steam had been left in the lid, which, when it had served its purpose, was sealed over with wax. Yankee ingenuity caught the idea at once and the next year canning factories were erected all over the United States.

SUMATRA AMUSEMENTS.

How the French Ambassador Hires to Elevate the Native Taste.

The Batavia Nieuwsblad gives particulars of an official tiger and buffalo fight that took place at Padang Pandjang in the Residency of the West Coast of Sumatra. The Assistant Resident of the district had determined upon giving this entertainment to the people owing to the capture of a large tigress in that neighborhood. The tigress had variously been offered to the zoological gardens at Batavia and Amsterdam, and by the time of the fight had lost much of her fierceness. The people of the place got together stout bamboos to fence round the arena, a circular piece of ground more than 30 feet broad, with galleries for spectators who were charged admission fees. A few weeks before the Assistant Resident secured a tiger, and the people provided two stout buffaloes to measure themselves in the arena with it and the tigress. On the day of battle crowds thronged the arena into which the tigress stepped at about 9 a.m. to meet a buffalo. The latter quickly held its own against the tigress, which, reduced by her long imprisonment, showed no inclination for further attack. To stir them up both animals were picked now and then with bamboo darts. The buffalo then got some spear thrusts, the wounds being freely drenched with extract of chillies. The tigress was aroused by the application of burning torches and crackers, and in short, every effort was made to give the onlookers their money's worth. Despite all this, neither buffalo nor tigress would fight, so that in the end orders were given to kill the tigress. After her corpse had been removed, the second buffalo was led into the arena, followed by the tiger. The buffalo aided by its comrade, attacked the tiger, which soon had enough of it and sought safety by clambering up the palisading until several spear thrusts made it let go. No amount of urging with sticks, thrusts and fire, proved of any avail in arousing the champions to battle, until the prolonged torture of the tiger was ended by killing it with spears. Both corpses were taken to the assistant resident, but the skins proved worthless from being scorched and pierced. The spectators left disappointed at not seeing a fight which they had paid so high to see. What would be done with the balance of the fees after deducting expenses was not known, but it was hoped that the government would spend it in relieving the distress caused by a recent earthquake there.

ABOUT SPECTACLES.

Differences Between Pebble and Glass as Constructive Material.

All spectacles are made of crown glass or rock crystal. The latter is what is known as pebble. It is a transparent variety of quartz, which is very hard. It is found in Madagascar, in Switzerland, and Brazil, and also to some extent in Colorado and California. It is often pretended by opticians that only certain kinds, and expensive kinds at that, of pebble can be used for the best glasses, but the fact is that the material which should be selected for these glasses must be something which disperses light the least in proportion to its refractive power, and crown glass does this far better than crystal. Glass is, therefore, used to much the greatest extent for spectacle making, and is always preferred for strong glasses or lenses of considerable magnifying power. Dr. C. H. Vilas, in his book, "Spectacles and How to Choose Them," says: "Opticians often claim the preference for pebbles on the ground that the polish on their surface is higher, and hence they do not scratch as easily; and that the material is perfectly white and transmits a pure light, while even the best glass has a greenish tint. Formerly this remark about the non-transparency of glass was true, but a perfectly transparent glass is now readily and cheaply available to all opticians, and transmits a pure, clear light. In this preference the greater object should overcome the lesser one; hence for glasses of high power, and especially concave ones, crown glass should be selected; for weak ones, and especially for weak concave ones, one may with safety indulge in any prejudice for pebbles. By the use of the pebble tester, however, one often will find his supposed pebbles to consist of glass, and thus his ideas of the relative value of the different kinds encounter a rude shock. All oculists and opticians should have this apparatus for the testing of lenses, and allow any one to use it, or, what is still better, be honest enough not to misrepresent the quality of their goods. This test consists of two plates of tourmaline, between which the lens is placed, and then held up to the window. If the lens be pebble, the light is polarized, and colored rings appear; if it be glass, no effect is produced. Pebble is also a better conductor of heat than glass, hence a lens made from it will seem colder to the tip of the tongue than one made from glass. Furthermore, in order that a pebble lens may be of its greatest value, it is essential that its axis be at an exact right angle to the axis of double refraction, this latter being a peculiarity of pebble in one direction. But it does not lessen in this respect, not so many lenses can be cut out of one piece of crystal, and hence it is sometimes disregarded, and in consequence the image seen through them is more or less blurred and fuzzy on the edge. Because long work had to be done upon the pebble tester, inferior lenses can be easily detected, for if the axis be exactly on the right of colored rings will be circular; if not, they will be more or less irregular or enlarged in shape, or, as opticians usually say, pleasantly speaking, will be concentric."

A Bicycle in Spring.

Spring is certainly one of the most original and unlikely materials in the world for a bicycle. Yet, for all that, one of Germany's great men is mentioned in the approaching reformed edition of the Friedrichsruh, poem, treasure, Prince Bismarck's gift to Germany, of Wilhelm, the chief of the very constitutional party. He is represented the man, mounted on one wheel and holding the reins of a spring on his head. Everyone who knows that the Germans are so attached to the and the humour in such the Germans that one and good humoured as represented by the part of a national monument.

Paris Hotel Fire.

New York, Nov. 23.—St. Nicholas Park Hotel, at 130th street and Broadway, burned early this morning. Rose Rasbunler, a servant girl, was burned to death, and the guests had a narrow escape.

Plighting Their Troth.

One of the most poetic incidents in the life of Burns took place on that second Sunday in May, 1786, when he and Highland Mary met on the banks of the Ayr to plight their troth. Standing one on either side of a murmuring brook, and holding a Bible between, they swore to be true to each other while life lasted. And then they exchanged Bibles over the clear running water. That custom of lovers exchanging Bibles is still, it seems, observed among the peasants of Scotland; for in giving her evidence in a breach of promise case the other day a jilted country maiden related that she and her lover had once exchanged Bibles as a token that they would be true to each other.

Curious Lighthouse.

The most extraordinary of all British lighthouses is to be found on Arnish Rock, Stornoway Bay—a rock which is separated from the island of Lewis by a channel over 500 feet wide. On this rock a conical beacon is erected, and on its summit a lantern is fixed, from which, night after night, shines a light which is seen by the fishermen far and wide. The way in which this peculiar lighthouse is illuminated is this:—On the island of Lewis, 500 feet or so away, is a lighthouse, and from a window in the tower a stream of light is projected on to a mirror in the lantern on the summit of Arnish Rock. The consequence is that, to all intents and purposes, a lighthouse exists which has neither lamp nor lighthouse-keeper.

A Highlander's Answer.

A gentleman from the Highlands of Scotland attended by his trusty servant Donald, a native of the wild and mountainous district of Lochaber, in Inverness-shire, when travelling through the fertile and delightful plains of Italy, asked Donald what he would do if he possessed an estate there. Donald instantly replied, "Please your honour, I would sell it, and buy an estate in Lochaber!"
